How does Flexible Delivery work?

Flexible Delivery is a combination of learning methods that gives you the freedom to learn from any location, using printed learning materials, that you can read and make notes in. Learning is completed through reading materials, such as Learner Guides and your assessment can be handwritten or typed up, depending on what suits you. There is also a class you need to attend in person, to learn the hands-on practical skills that are required. This class is offered at night and on weekends.

We support you to successfully complete, by assisting you with the following for every subject, which takes around seven hours per week:

- Read the Learner Guide
- Read the PowerPoint slides from the webinar
- Complete the assessment in handwriting or by typing the answers
- Contact your teacher if you have any questions
- Submit the assessment by the due date for each subject.

Your teacher guides you through all aspects, such as course content, assessments and general course work. You will need to attend a class, where you will learn practical tasks. You must keep up with successfully submitting assessments on-time, or you may need to pay $500 to re-enrol and have new dates allocated to your subjects.

Practical Placement

Practical Placement allows students to complete work experience in a real-life workplace. It gives students the opportunity to gain skills and put the knowledge they have learnt into practice.

Students need to successfully complete the Practical Placement component for the course. NIET has a range of places for students to undertake Practical Placement. Students generally complete placement one day a week during the course.

For learners who are working in the industry, working hours may be used for Practical Placement with the approval of the employer.

Assessment Methods

We use a range of assessment methods including:

- Written assignments
- Projects and case studies
- Workplace tasks
- Practical Placement logbook and observations

All students have access to their trainer, who has extensive experience and expertise in the course content and the aged care industry.
